

Lycoming College Art Gallery

25 W. 4th Street

"See Me" by Lyco Students

"See Me" is a collaborative installation designed by Holley Fuller '18 and coordinated by Andrea McDonough Varner '03, art department coordinator for WASD. The exhibition opens with an artist reception on June 1st, 5pm – 7:30pm, and a gallery talk at 5:30 p.m. Resulting from recent concern for student safety in schools, the "See Me" project provides a creative outlet for public school students to express their thoughts and feelings about these issues by contributing self-portraits using their medium of choice.

Arthaus Projects

"Trophic Eggs" by Mark Loughney

Open for First Friday, 6pm- 9pm. The Trophic Eggs collection of drawings was inspired by resurrected thoughts and ideas that had previously been rejected as nonsense. Insects have again made their ubiquity apparent in these works, as they had in Loughney's previous collection. Every piece begins as an egg of an idea to be hatched and grown out on the paper. "Trophic Eggs" is on display May 18 - June 30.
